Georg Macco 1863-1933 is a German painter born in Aix-la-Chapelle, and died in Genoa.
Georg Macco studied at the Düsseldorf Academy of Fine Arts with Eugen Dücker and Peter Janssen, he began as an illustrator, notably for the books of his brother Hermann Friedrich Macco.
He set up his studio in Munich, traveled extensively, painted landscapes of the high Alpine plateaus, Norway, Spitsbergen and Italy, and then made Orientalism his specialty, with works inspired by his travels to Constantinople,
