Description

Oil painting on masonite by French artist Jean Arboit (Annecy, 1930). The artwork depicts two faces, one male and one female, in close-up. The male face, larger in size, has strong features and a serious or contemplative expression, while the smaller female face, in the foreground, gazes directly at the viewer with intensity. The two faces are closely positioned, suggesting an emotional or relational connection between the figures. The male figure's features may represent an interpretation of Jesus and Mary.

The composition is characterized by a vivid color palette and bold brushstrokes that lend expressiveness and depth to the figures.

The painting is signed "Arboit" in the lower left
