

14th Century Sculptor

Description

Sculptor active in Friuli in the 14th century Virgin Annunciate stone sculpture with traces of polychromy h 103 cm Very elegant in the movements of the drapery that falls in thick folds to the ground, held by a belt at the waist like a Greek kore, the Virgin Annunciate also wears a cloak that falls softly from her shoulders. The beautiful oval face, with perfect and regular features, is framed by wavy locks that accentuate the solemn expression.
