Description

Neoclassical bedside table, late 18th century, Lombardy. The piece of furniture is veneered in rosewood, maple, boxwood and other light woods for the inlays; both the front where the door is housed and the sides are made with a lowered central panel in rosewood, with an octagonal reserve in the centre enclosed by a moulded and inlaid frame; the reserves on a maple background have an architectural inlay with capricci, temples, statues and figures. The panels are inserted in a double frame with a brass-plated frame and rosewood veneer arranged head-on and in a herringbone pattern. An inlaid frame in the base delimits the four truncated pyramid feet and another supports the top in which a top in green alps marble is set. Missing parts and restorations, walnut interior. The piece of furniture is similar
