Description

Superb porcelain pipe from the 19th century FRANCE or GERMANY, richly decorated. The bowl has an architectural shape with Gothic-style sides, highlighted with golden threads. Each side is adorned with a polychrome decoration, representing landscapes. The lower part of the body alternates black, turquoise green and white backgrounds, all enhanced with golden threads. The angular side handle is also elegantly highlighted with a gold border. The original metal lid is equipped with its hinge and its tightening collar, ensuring a perfect fit. The stem is extended by a turned piece of organic material. The stem (or shaft) is sculpted from an organic material, most likely meerschaum, and is distinguished by remarkable ornamental work. It begins with an upper part in the shape of a turned capital with
