Description

Claude Viseux (1927-2008) was a French sculptor and painter, known for his works combining abstraction and biomorphism, often made of metal. His work draws inspiration from both the organic and the mechanical, creating dynamic and expressive forms. This sculpture, signed and dated 1991, is typical of his style, with metal elements assembled in a way that evokes both industrial structures and natural forms. He was influenced by surrealism and science, which is reflected in his sculptural compositions. Here it is a tribute to MANUREVA. height 46 Width 35 depth 169 kg
