Description

Claude Viseux's style is abstract and biomorphic, blending surrealist, organic, and industrial influences. His work is often associated with constructivist art and lyrical abstraction, with a sculptural approach that evokes both mechanics and the living. Characteristics of his style:

- o Industrial materials: He mainly uses metal, which he assembles and welds to create complex forms.
- o Organic and mechanical inspirations: His sculptures sometimes recall cellular structures, exoskeletons, or hybrid machines.
- o Dynamism and movement: His compositions play with the balance and tensions between curved and angular forms.
- o Scientific and technological influences: He was interested in technical advances and forms derived from nature, which is reflected in his works. His sculptures often have a futuristic
