Description

Oil painting on cardboard signed and dated by Giuseppe Serafini (Montelupo Fiorentino 1915 - 1987) The Tuscan artist, discovered by Antonio Possenti and inserted by him into the current of naive artists, worked as a ceramist and began to paint out of passion from a young age. His humble origins did not allow him to buy colors so he invented his own mixed painting technique. His favorite subjects are scenes that portray the work of his land, faces, animals, especially doves and oxen. In the painting in question the doves surround in a sparse way two men with hollow faces, with large blue eyes. At the bottom right the signature and the date (84) which places it at the end of the author's career. Frame with glass, in good condition, requires small retouching. The measurements indicated include the frame. BUY
