Description

Set of four oriental columns with modern bases. Carved wood. 20th century. Four carved wooden columns with modern bases, each with a faceted shaft and finely stamped bands at the top, and surmounted by capitals with simple decoration and square tops. They resemble, in some details of the shaft and the bands in relief under the capitals, the columns of the Haveli of the so-called Neasden temple in London, and it is possible to find others in Gujarat (India) which have similarities in the shafts and bands at the top. - Size: 41x35x248 cms
