Description

Pair of Neo-Gothic floor candelabra. Wrought iron. Spain, 20th century. Pair of wrought iron floor candelabra with a tripod base, a stem decorated with small discs and ending in a circular plate, and a top composed of three levels of curved arms ending in floral elements, the third being the highest and ending in a point. The set is inspired by Spanish lighting elements of the 15th century, in particular pieces known as "floridas" or "florid style", before the appearance of openwork plates at the end of that century. Compare with older examples preserved in important institutions such as the Museu del Cau Ferrat in Sitges, the Museo Nacional de Artes Decorativas (Madrid), etc. - Dimensions: 62x62x219 cm
