Description

Lectern. Wrought iron. Baluster 17th century; remainder 20th century. Wrought iron lectern with three twisted S-shaped legs with a disc in the center, a multi-section balustrade base, and a top with straight bands. The central axis is composed of several parts (solomonic and balustrade, joined by a piece of discs and other moldings), and its lines are characteristic of the ironwork of the period (compare, for example, with the Grille of the Choir of the Cathedral of Valladolid, currently preserved in the Metropolitan Museum of New York, and note the differences). Weight: 22 kg. - Dimensions: 42x48x155 cm
