Description

Vase in glass paste (thick pressed-molded glass of purplish-brown color) by Georges de Feure*, decorated with women, dancers and vestals draped in the antique style, from the late 19th-early 20th centuries. * Georges de Feure (1868-1943): pseudonym of Georges Joseph van Sluijters is a French painter, poster artist and designer of furniture, decorative objects and airplanes. His work is characterized by numerous representations of the femme fatale, a theme found in all the works of the Art Nouveau movement. During the first decades of the 20th century, he continued to create decorative ensembles (evolving from the Art Nouveau style to the Art Deco style).
