Description

This elegant blackened pearwood workbench, dating from the mid-19th century, is a true masterpiece of cabinetmaking. The piece of furniture opens with a flap decorated with a chiseled brass composition, engraved with the initials "GA". The interior of the flap features a mirror framed with bronze rods, revealing a practical storage space. In addition to this space, the workbench has a sliding work box, ideal for storing various accessories. The lock, with a bronze entry, allows all these elements to be secured simultaneously. The whole rests on four curved legs with bronze falls, profiled on sabots, adding a touch of sophistication to this already remarkable piece of furniture. The piece of furniture perfectly embodies the elegance and craftsmanship of the 19th century, combining
