Description

Pair of showcase etanger sideboards from Sicily, from the Charles X era. They are made of rosewood slabs and all threaded in Bois de Rose wood. They have an elegant and refined shaped line, with a notched shape on the sides with an opening door on the front. Beautiful perforated and carved workmanship on the corners of the glass with plant motifs and curls, to embellish the piece of furniture. Worked and carved pilasters in the uprights of the piece of furniture both in the upper part and in the lower part, to complete the final part of the turned onion-shaped uprights that support the whole. Upper part with shaped white Carrara marble top, to follow the line of the piece of furniture itself.
