Description

This figurine is an Ainu production from the 1950s-60s. The "human" Ainu are an aboriginal population living in northern Japan. They arrived around the 14th century BC, in the Kuril Islands and Sakhalin (1000 years before the Wa people, ancestors of the current Japanese people). They were gradually pushed back to what is now Hokkaido. During the Meiji era, forced assimilation prohibited their culture, dispossessed them of their lands, until the complete annexation of Hokkaido. Animists, the Ainu respect divine spirits "kamuy", male or female, scattered in nature, some good, others malevolent. The character wears a tunic embroidered with recognizable traditional patterns. Ainu art was not studied as such until 1926, in a work by Sugiyama Suetomo. Tomawak Yoshichika, 19th Ainu
