Description

Pair of cabinets veneered in mahogany feather, resting on feet of which the front ones have a circular plinth, supporting uprights in the form of a lictor's fasces, terminating in a leafy capital. On the front, there is a pair of doors concealing three drawers, also veneered in mahogany feather; two further drawers are concealed in the lower band and in the under-top band. The meeting point between the two doors is decorated with a symmetrical phytomorphic carving; floral and anthemium carvings also adorn the undercounter band, both on the front and the sides. The white Carrara marble top follows the contour of the cabinet; the interior is made of chestnut and poplar wood.
