his brother Joseph-Louis died in combat. To honor his memory, he decided to sign his works by adopting one of his brother's first names. In 1922, he was accepted into the competition for official painter of the Navy. He lived for a time on a barge in Paris, then returned to settle in Limoges where he died in 1952. His works are preserved in Paris at the Musée de la Marine and in Bordeaux at the École de Santé Navale.
