Description

Portrait of three young boys, probably brothers, gathered around a table. One is standing, the other two are sitting. They are wearing dark clothes, with large white collars and colored ribbons tied around their necks - a typical children's fashion of the mid-19th century. On the table are albums open to engravings or drawings, suggesting a cultivated family environment. The background is enlivened by a wide dark green curtain, which highlights the composition. The looks are direct, serious, and full of restraint. Oil on canvas signed lower right J. Goblet and dated 1854. Gilded wooden frame with wavy decoration. In good condition. Dimensions with frame: 126x99 cm
