Description

Maternity depicting a woman in a seated position breastfeeding her child. This type of maternity is rare and is called "hàrberé". It is linked to the cult of Maa. The style is powerful and although it is only fragmentary, an intense force emanates from it. The style is particularly vigorous and expressive. I invite you to look at the photos to see the missing parts. The base was made intelligently and restores grandeur to this statue. Terracotta with an earthy patina, missing parts
