Description

This exquisite pair of 19th-century French white cast iron Medici vases embodies the timeless elegance of classical garden ornamentation. Inspired by the original 16th-century Medici vase on display in the Uffizi Gallery in Florence, these vases reflect the enduring grandeur of ancient forms while showcasing the craftsmanship of the Industrial Revolution era. Cast iron, a prized material in the 19th century, was valued for its durability, strength, and ability to capture intricate detail. These vases, with their sculptural curves and refined proportions, were once prized ornaments of grand gardens, terraces, and courtyards. Over time, their surfaces have acquired a rich patina, adding to their charm and authenticity. Whether placed in a formal garden, at the entrance to a home, or on a veranda, this
