Description
-------------

Refined oil painting on wood panel, signed "Paon", created in the second half of the 20th century, depicting a charming urban scene in an Italian village. The composition captures a stone-arched alleyway with historic buildings in warm tones, typical of Mediterranean architecture.

In the foreground, a touching and nostalgic moment: several female figures, likely washerwomen, are portrayed as they do laundry at a public stone washbasin, partially hidden by steps and shadow. This detail adds a narrative and social depth to the work, evoking the everyday life of rural Italy in the last century.

The natural light and the perspective give depth
