Description

Double-body sideboard in solid walnut, Directoire period. The front legs are projecting, the uprights are rounded with fluting. They end with shells. The front crosspiece, the tops of the doors as well as the top crosspiece are finely carved. Vertical fluting is also present on the "between-two doors". The top is underlined by a small groove and it follows the movement of the legs. The interiors are cleaned and glazed, racks are present, which makes the shelves modular.
