Description

These armchairs rest on sabre legs. Lotiform decoration at the level of the connecting stops surmounted on either side by a dolphin's head, forming armrest consoles. These in crook are remarkable in finish and elegance, fleshy, well rounded and deliciously tapered, ending in a tail joining the amount of the backrest decorated with stylized scales. Backrests with slightly curved capitals, the tops are covered with a beautiful and discreet molded barette; the rear assembly in casing attests to the period (circa 1815). Perfect stability and comfortable seats, completely redone recently by a professional upholsterer, and covered with an elegant speckled golden yellow cotton fabric (fabric available in case of incident and seat protector, see photo). Shipping possible on quote in France and internationally
