Description

Beautiful large portrait of two hunting dogs dated 1898 by L. Briez, oil on canvas in a stained wooden frame, this expressive painting is a feat and a touch of a master of animal painting from the end of the 19th century. Held on a leash in a natural landscape with a bright sky and distant mountains, these two Setters pose, one white spotted with a brown head, the other black and brown. A remarkable and generous animal painting, of quality and clean, freshly cleaned in its original frame; bright and original, could be intended for a lover of hunting and its world of nature, grandiose in this pretty portrait of a much appreciated and mastered subject with a thick and vigorous touch. A pleasant, decorative work of good proportion in good condition, sig et datée
