Description

Discover this elegant and imposing wrought iron chandelier, typical of the Art Deco style of the 1930s, from France. This exceptional light fixture, both refined and bold, is distinguished by its three-pronged wrought iron frame adorned with magnificent plant motifs, evoking the vine. The tulips and the bowl (diffuser) in pressed-molded glass, of great beauty, present a stylized neoclassical decoration with refined drapes, highlighting the finesse of the work. This chandelier presents an exceptional quality of manufacture, with glass elements that could be compared to the productions of the famous Degué house, renowned for its pressed-molded glass creations at that time. Although this chandelier is not signed, the lines of its design and the manufacturing technique recall the most
