Its crackled vases, engraved on three layers of glass, earned it a gold medal. Renamed "E. Lévillé" after Eugène Rousseau's death in 1890, the store moved to 140 Faubourg Saint-Honoré in Paris in 1899. In 1902, Ernest Lévillé joined forces with Maison Toy, a porcelain and crystal business, under the name "Maisons Toy et Lévillé réunies." The establishment was then located at 10 rue de la Paix.
