Description

Bronze sculpture, by Francesco Barbera known as Sandrún, "Beethoven," 1900s era Splendid and imposing bronze sculpture depicting one of the greatest exponents of classical music Beethoven. Beethoven (undated). Bronze, 55×106x42 cm. Very good condition Sandrún's Michelangeloism is evident in this powerful interpretation of the great Viennese musician, seen as a Homeric hero. The anatomical perfection, strained in the effort of artistic creativity, seems to focus on the contracted features of the face. The open mouth, the intense gaze, the medusa-like hair: everything tells us about an exceptional man, superhuman and above all - because of his lyrical and beautiful nudity - true in the Sandronian sense of the term. Measurements: 55×106x42 cm.
