Description

This important giltwood mirror evokes the elegance and richness of the Louis XVI style, revisited in the mid-19th century. An impressive piece due to its size and the finesse of its workmanship, it embodies decorative art at its peak, uniting tradition and sophistication. The finely molded frame is adorned with friezes of pearls and ribbons, testifying to the precision and delicacy characteristic of this style. The details of the falling acanthus leaves further enrich its perimeter, adding a harmonious and dynamic vegetal note. The top of the mirror, an openwork pediment, attracts the eye with an admirable composition. A triumphant crown rests between ribbon-wrapped branches of roses, symbolizing grace and abundance. This central sculpture gives the mirror an almost royal dimension, enhanced
