miniatures. There are four scenes; forest animals, forest birds, a hunting scene and a polo game, representing the life of the princes in the past. Work of remarkable finesse, each mandorla is separated by two pendants, birds and flowers as well as the mosque of Isfahan. The field of the whole decorated with white interlacing on a Persian blue background. Each miniature is different from the others. Persian art that is also found in Mughal art, inspired by the miniatures of the school of Tabriz and Herat. A frieze at the top and bottom of intermingled enameled roses close the decoration. The border and the collar enameled in silver color. ## Old Minâkâri are not legion, it is increasingly difficult to find them in good condition.
