Description

Pellerin factory between 1830 and 1850 Pellerin factory Épinal The Pellerin factory produced many images depicting Napoleon and events related to his life and reign. For example, it published plates showing the Battle of Jena⁸, the Battle of Waterloo², and other Napoleonic battles. These images were popular and helped spread Napoleon's image throughout the country.²³ Jean-Charles Pellerin, founder of Imagerie Pellerin in 1796, used the success of these images to expand his business, which became a renowned and innovative image "factory."⁵³ After the fall of the Empire, Pellerin continued to publish Napoleonic images to contribute to national reconciliation under the July Monarchy.
