Description

JOSEPH STÖBER, AFTER JAN DAVIDSZ. DE HEEM
Allegory of the Eucharist in a Garland of Flowers and Fruits
Austria, 19th century
This print was most likely executed in etching with engraved details, a technique commonly used in the 19th century for reproductions after Old Masters. The visual effect combines the fluidity of etched lines with the precision of engraving, resulting in a composition of rich symbolism and refined technical quality. signed: J. D. de Heem pinx. / Jos. Kunsthistorisches Museum in Vienna. At the center stands a radiant Eucharistic chalice set in an architectural niche, surrounded by a lush baroque garland of fruits, flowers, and foliage -- a rich example of the pronkstilleven style. The composition blends technical virtuosity with theological symbolism: grapes, wheat, and pomegranates allude to the Passion and the Eucharist. The black-and-white rendering enhances the trompe-l'oeil effect and recalls the graphic refinement of Flemish baroque tradition. Very good condition. Presented in an elegant 20th-century gilded frame with a wide mat, suitable for display in a refined interior or discerning collection.
