Description

Virgin of Vestir or Saint. Carved and polychrome wood, etc. Spanish school, 17th century; later clothing. It is damaged. Polychrome wooden sculpture of the vestment type or dressing gown that includes a series of garments: skirt, sleeves, etc. Religious sculptures of clothing were very common during the Spanish Baroque (and later), and there may be cases of works in which the invisible part has barely been sketched and others in which the entire sculpture is found, with many intermediate points. Note, in this case, the polychrome clothing directly on the body. -
