Description

Splendid fabric panel published in 1993 by Nicholas Herbert, a designer renowned for his historically and naturally inspired motifs. This fabric, entitled "Les Pêcheurs," perfectly illustrates the art of narrative textiles, halfway between tapestry and revisited toile de Jouy. The design is organized into delicately outlined medallions, each containing a rural scene: elegantly dressed figures fishing in a pastoral landscape adorned with ruins, dense foliage, and tranquil rivers. These picturesque vignettes are surrounded by a lush network of floral scrolls, stylized pine cones, garlands of vegetation, and topped with pairs of tropical birds perched among the flowers. The whole is printed on a luminous ivory background that highlights a palette of fresh and harmonious tones: leafy greens, golden yellows, soft lavenders, and touches of blue-gray bring depth and refinement. The rich yet balanced design evokes the great textile designs of the 18th century while offering a contemporary touch. This panel, with its balanced composition and generous dimensions, can be used as a door, wall hanging, headboard covering, or even stretched in a wood frame. It will bring elegance, softness and a touch of bucolic escape to any classic or chic country interior. Very good general condition - fresh colors - soft fabric and ready to use. ref 29/04/2025
