Description

Large and magnificent painting dating from the years 1820-1830 and which represents a rather spectacular scene with a cuirassier horse which seems frightened and lost in the middle of battle: on its saddle is the number 5, which corresponds to the 5th Cuirassier Regiment of the 1st Napoleonic Empire which was baptized thus in 1815, and which was originally a cavalry regiment created during the French Revolution... note: the canvas is not signed but it would deserve serious investigations to identify its author or at least try to obtain an attribution: the period 1820-1830 corresponds precisely to that where renowned artists like Théodore Géricault (1791-1824) Horace Vernet (1789-1863) or Alfred de Dreux (1810-1860) will produce works where the "horse" will hold a preponderant place
