Description

This bronze with a medal patina, titled "La Défense du Drapeau" (Defense of the Flag), by Charles Anfrie (1833-1905), depicts a soldier in action, standing on a rocky base. The soldier, dressed in a military uniform and wearing a cap, holds a pistol in his right hand, which he points forward. In his left hand, he holds a flag, which appears to be fluttering behind him, adding dynamics to the scene. The base of the sculpture bears the inscription "La DÉFENSE du DRAPEAU" (Defense of the Flag) and the artist's signature on the base. The meticulous details of this work highlight courage and patriotism, themes dear to this period. Historical testimony and praise of the courage of the French military, during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, this sculpture will delight you with its charisma.
