that enhances the piece, highlighting its liturgical character. In Spain, during the twentieth century, silversmiths continued this tradition, creating ciboria that combined traditional techniques with profound symbolic meaning. This ciborium, dated around 1930, is a clear example of the devotion and skill with which artisans worked metal, turning each piece into an artistic expression of faith. Today, ciboria from this period are appreciated both for their spiritual value and their artistic quality, becoming sought-after pieces for collectors of sacred and liturgical art. The cup, in contrast to the richly decorated base, features a smooth, polished finish that brings a serene and clean aesthetic, ideal for ceremonial use. The lid follows this same line, with subtle decorative details along the edge that complete the design without detracting from its simplicity. This contrast between the ornamentation of the base and the sobriety of the cup creates an attractive and harmonious visual balance. Although the ciborium bears no visible hallmarks, an acid test has been performed to ensure it is made of genuine silver, and we offer a written certification for those who desire greater assurance in their investment. This element guarantees the buyer the quality and authenticity of the piece, ideal both as a collector's item and for ceremonial use. This antique silver ciborium is more than just a devotional object; it is a collectible piece that will bring beauty and spiritual meaning to any space. Its timeless aesthetic makes it the perfect complement for a church or chapel, ideal for use in liturgical celebrations. Dimensions: Height: 28 cm (11 in) Base Diameter: 12 cm (4.7 in)
