Description

Beautiful oil on canvas depicting a basket of grapes with numerous fruits, the bunches of grapes blooming and juicy are not yet detached from their vine shoots, on the entablature in warm red and orange colors rest grapes and fruits, a delicious testimony to a generous autumn, in a disorder that is only apparent. We can attribute this beautiful and rare composition to the talent of Isaak Soreau 1604-1644, a quality artist from the 17th century rediscovered in the 20th century, his painting invites us to read a silent world, the painting presented here is a "good" example of this. The canvas is presented in good condition, without a frame, with old repairs.
