Description

This small, attractive early 19th-century Georgian leather brass-bound coaching trunk or chest is a remarkable piece. It is covered in beautifully studded leather and reinforced with brass bindings, featuring paneled brass studding and two sturdy carrying handles. Both the leather and brass fittings are in good condition, and the trunk remains in its original order. Dating from circa 1810, this trunk is a fantastic example of its kind, showing the right amount of patina for its age. The leather exhibits a deep color and rich patination, making this trunk a rare find. This piece serves as a bold and decorative statement for a variety of interiors, offering both functionality and aesthetic appeal.
