exhibited on the famous walls of the Bernheim and Cambacérès galleries. Numerous solo exhibitions were also organized in Marseille, Nice, Lyon, Biarritz, and Périgueux. He spent the last years of his life, from 1965 onward, in Chancelade, creating small, bright, and colorful landscapes of the surrounding area and publishing several collections of poetry. It was in 1965 that Truffier created this rare view of the Isle from the Toulon district. It was taken from the road to Angoulême, on the border between Périgueux and Chancelade. As is often the case, Truffier uses his pastel colors.
