

PROANTIC
LE PLUS BEAU CATALOGUE D'ANTIQUITES

Japan, Sleeping Cat In Japanese Kutani Porcelain, Meiji Period

1 700 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Porcelain

Length : 31

Width : 18

Height : 14

Description

Japan, Japanese Kutani Porcelain Sleeping Cat, Meiji Period This Meiji period Kutani porcelain cat is an exquisite piece depicting a "nemuri neko" (sleeping or peaceful cat). Inspired by the famous wooden sculpture located at Toshougu Shrine in Nikko, created by Hidari Jingoro, this work symbolizes serenity and peace. The cat is crafted from pure white fine porcelain using a highly skilled craftsmanship, using a multi-part mold. It is decorated with delicately applied gold patterns to represent its fur. Its neck is adorned with a red glazed scarf, accented with green and yellow patterns, which adds a touch of realism and elegance. The details, such as the peaceful expression and flowing lines of the body, reflect the exceptional technical mastery of Kutani porcelain. The size makes this piece ideal for

Dealer

Cristina Ortega et Michel Dermigny

Asian Art, Expert CNES and CEFA

Tel : 0607481028

Mobile : 0607481028

23 rue de Beaune

Paris 75 007

display as a collectible or decorative item. This object perfectly captures the tranquil spirit of the nemuri neko, a symbol of peace and harmony in Japanese culture. 31 x 18 x 14cm Japan, Meiji period