A poignant and rare 14th-century Romanesque Christ figure, beautifully carved in polychrome wood. Despite its small size, the piece conveys a profound spiritual gravity, characteristic of medieval devotional objects. The figure bears a deep, striking patina, a testament to centuries of veneration and the passage of time. Subtle details suggest flowing drapery and a gentle, solemn expression. A small opening in the torso may indicate earlier mounting or ritual use. This evocative artifact exemplifies the austere beauty and emotional power of medieval religious sculpture.
