Description

Here is an elegant, curved living room table, in the Art Deco style and period. This is a French work from around 1920. It is covered with a very pretty speckled maple veneer. It consists of two oval tops and two curved uprights. It has been completely restored and polished with a buffer. This piece of furniture, despite its century of existence, is in magnificent condition. This table is very decorative due to the color of the wood and can also be used as a small console or occasional serving table.
