Description

Elegant sculptural glazed ceramic bowl, attributed to Pierre Baey. Free organic form, with pleated and animated contours, evoking fabric or molten material. Rusty-brown glaze with metallic highlights, with a ribbed texture typical of his research on the material. Very good condition. Dimensions: width 11 cm height 6.5 cm Period: circa 1970-1980 Style: Contemporary French ceramics Pierre Baey is a French ceramist active in the second half of the 20th century, recognized for his free and experimental creations. Influenced by the modern art movements and the research of post-war contemporary ceramics, he explores organic forms, often modeled by hand, and complex textures playing with light and material. His works, sometimes unique, combine technical mastery and expressive spontaneity.
