Description

Attributed to Aert Anthonisz. Dutch painter of Flemish origin Antwerp 1579/80 - 1620
Amsterdam Dutch ships in stormy waters Oil on panel : 40,8 X 66,9 cm Unsigned Frame : 52,9 X 79,7 cm This is a good example of early Dutch marine painting, dating circa 1610/1620, attributed to Aert Anthonisz.: a ship flying the flag from Hoorn is swiftly sailing over a beautifully stylised green sea. Anthonisz. was one of those early Dutch marine specialists of Flemish origin who, at a young age, had fled with his parents from Flanders for religious reasons. Until 1973 Aert Anthonisz. was known as Aert van Antum, because his signature had been misread. All my paintings stand fully documented on my website:
