Louis Émile Dardoize, born March 10, 1826 in Paris and died October 17, 1901 in the same city, is a self-taught French painter and lithographer. In a letter to his father, a few weeks before his death, he wrote: "Last year, the love of drawing had already taken hold of me. [...] This year it's even worse, this passion follows me everywhere, everywhere I have to draw. [...] I have the continual feeling that the profession of draftsman will suit me very well. [...] Leave me, I beg you, let me follow the path that naturally opens up beneath my feet." Self-taught, he
