Description

Important Venetian Trumeau with two bodies, made in the second half of the 18th century, internally veneered in walnut and various woods. The lower body has a tripartite wavy front, a folding top decorated with inlaid motifs containing a series of small compartments and drawers, the upper body opens with two mirrored doors with antique glass finely engraved with Neoclassical motifs. The entire structure is set on a wavy architectural line typical of the 18th century Venetian production of late Baroque taste with Rococo influences but already open to the Neoclassical taste in the engraved decorations. Measurements H 240 x 98 x 53 cm
