Description

Ferderico Rossano Italian school 1835-1912 Landscape with a pond Pastel Fine foxing Framed dimensions: 42 x 50 cm Rossano was born in Naples and studied painting at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Naples at the request of his father, a former soldier in Murat's army, who wanted his son to study architecture. Influenced by the School of Posillipo and the style of Filippo Palizzi, he developed his own subjects. He painted many seascapes on the island of Ischia. He was also influenced by Gennaro Ruvo, Giacinto Gigante and Vincenzo Volpe. In 1858, De Gregorio invited him to Resina where he stayed in a room in the former Palazzo Reale. There he also met the painters Giuseppe De Nittis and Adriano Cecioni. Along with Marco de Gregorio, this
