Description

Large gilt bronze console resting on 6 sheathed feet, topped with a beautiful molded Aleppo breccia marble. The entablature is openwork and well chiseled. A shell centered on the projection stands out from the foliage frieze that runs along the entire entablature. The very marked central projection structures this console whose offset feet take up the codes of the Louis XIV style. The monolithic marble is cut from a very beautiful breccia with a homogeneous design. A peripheral molding gives a lot of elegance to the whole. The gilding is of very beautiful workmanship and perfectly preserved. This console is reminiscent of the productions of the great interior designers of the 20th century. Its large size testifies to the layout of a large residence.
