Description

Set of two side tables or stools in curved melamine-coated rosewood, square in shape with rounded corners, featuring a central handle. Each piece consists of two wooden parts, joined by brushed aluminum spacers. The design, probably Scandinavian-inspired and characterized by its simplicity and functionality, recalls the style of Alvar Aalto, although our research on the designer did not yield any results. These objects are in excellent condition, with only some light traces of white paint on one side of one of the stools. No scratches or dents are to be reported.
