Description

Inlays and threads present on all sides of the piece of furniture. The front is marked by a sgola frame that borders the two largest drawers. This chest of drawers is a fine example of Sicilian furniture from the 19th century, a period in which the island boasted a cabinet-making production of notable quality and a distinctive taste. Its aesthetics reflect the stylistic evolution of the time, which in Italy and in particular in the South, while assimilating European influences, maintained a strong local identity. Measurements: 128x63 H102 cm approx.
